Agricultural Development Trust, Baramati was founded by renowned social reformers Hon. Sharadchandra Pawar and his elder brother Late Padmashree Dr. D. G. Alias Appasaheb Pawar, in the year 1968. The trust began its activities by constructing percolation tanks in the drought prone area of Baramati which helped to build around 300 percolation tanks in the Baramati Tehsil.

The main purpose of the establishment of the trust was to create the confidence in the mind of famine affected people for sustaining their economic condition by way of adopting ancillary agricultural activities such as dairy & poultry. Subsequent basic concepts were switched on to the water management, high yielding varieties, soil health management and fertilizer management. Trust developed Integrated Farming System with effective input management such as agro-forestry, dry land agriculture, horticulture crops and socio-economic aspects of the farming community.
